Tim. Howard suffered for three years with lung and throat troubles, and last spring was thought by his neighbors to be dying. I heard of his condition and gave him A. B. C. Tonic. Its effect was magical. In a very short time he was able to leave his bed, and now regards himself a well man. Others in this vicinity have taken the "Tonic" with pronounced benefit.

Very respectfully, S. C. REDD, Beaver Dam Depot, Hanover Co., Va. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS. Treatise on Blood and Skin Disease y mail free. Address

S x-Mile Fishlines. They fish with fish thes aix miles long in Wennebago Like, Wisconsin, and use 20,-000 hooks on every line. If they don't haul up 2,000 fish every time they life a line they don't thick they are have g very good luck. And every fish will weign from 20 to 70 pounds. That's the way they fish for sturgeon out there. One of these fishlines will reach half way across the lake. It is a rope an inch in diameter. It is stretched cut into the lake by means of boats, large buoys being attached to it at intervals to keep it on the surface. The 20 000 hocks, builted with bleces of meat or fish, are lowered to the bottom of the lake by snoods of the proper length which are fastened to the main line.

An old-time acquaintance, a particular friend of mine, It takes 20 boats, with two men in each, to look after this big fi-hline. Each boat has 1,000 of the snoods in its charge. These are tied to the main line 18 locks apart, and to bait all the hooks once requires not less than 1,000 pounds of bait. It takes the 40 men and 20 boats ten bours to set the line for the first time. After that the fishermen are em-ployed in going over the line, hauling in the sturgeon that have been caught on the nooks, and rebalting where it is necessary. To had in a seventy-pound sturgeon from the bottom of the lake is an exciting piece of work; but it requires more strength than skill as the fish always has the hook several inches down his throat, having sucked bait and all down without any regard to consequences. There is no danger of losing the fish unless the hook breaks. When the fish is bauled to the surface a gaff as big as a meat kook is thrust into the side of its head, and the sturgeon is hauled into the boat and knocked in the head with a heavy maul. The book that captured it is cut out of its threat, rebaited, and threwn back into the lake. The average catch of sturgeons is one to every ten books. When a boat is loaded with all it can carry of sturgeon the is hermen row back to shore, where others take the fish and dispose of them. The fishermen know the particular sections of the line on which they work by the arrange-ment of the buoys. These are placed ten feet apart, and one is 150 of them is painted red. The space between the red buoys contains 1,000 hooks. The sections are numbered. The boats work the sections as their numbers correspond with the section num-While the average catch is one stur geon to ten books, it is no uncommon thing for the fishermen to find but one or two on an entire section of 1,000 hooks. The very next section may contain the full average of 100, and perhaps more. The Lake Winnebago sturgeon is highly prized among the jumbermen and others in the region. Its flesh is finer and of better flavor than the river or salt water sturgeon of the East. The fish selle at six cents per pound retail. Large quantities are salted and smoked for use in the lumber camps.

A Bull on the Rampage.

Charles Ellsworth, a farmer living in Wilton, which is a northern suburb of Saratoga Springe, N. Y., has a blooded bull, a large and beautiful animal, but of such vicious disposition as to make it prudent to keep street, containing six rooms and a bath room him confined with a ring in his nose in a cach, with good yards. Apply to JOHN S. BEACH, etable. A few nighte ago, the door of the stable being open because the weather was warm, the bull released himself from his fastenings and escaped. He wasn't at all euraged so he didn't stop to paw up dirt with his forefeet, nor did he put his nose to the ground, hump up his back, and bellow out a challenge to mortal combat. On the contrary, he started out to see how much fun a bull could have. In the first place he demolished the poultry roost and caused a hundred or more hens to make the night hideous with their squawks. Then he tore down the enclosure to the pig pens and sent two sows and their litters grunting and equealing about the premises, and then he tore down the clothes line on which a week's wash had been left out to dry. After tip-ping over the soft-roap barrel, the lye cask and the rain-water tank, he encountered the tool house which he partly demolished, tumbling the implements about. Finally he attacked a grindstone which stood under a tree, and throwing it up so that it was mh25 td a tree, and throwing it up so that it was caught on his horns, he started for the house and banged heavily against the door. Mr. Ellsworth was away from home, and his wife and daughter were alone in the house. From the noises they had heard they suspected that thi-ves were about, and Miss Elleworth grasped a revolver and prepared herself for any emergency. When she heard the pounding on the door she supposed that burglars or tramps were breaking in, and demanded to know who the intruders were and what they wanted. Getting no reply and the banging upon the door continuing, the brave girl fired a shot they invite the attention of the trade.

Orders from the country for merchandise shall in rolled the grindstone, which had slipped receive prompt attention.
